

MARK FEINGOLD

Attorney, Member of the Firm
 mfeingold@outsidegc.com

Mark is a seasoned life sciences and healthcare attorney. For over 30 years, Mark has represented academic healthcare institutions and global pharmaceutical research manufacturers, assisting his clients in finding practical, timely, and effective solutions to a myriad of legal matters, including in- and out-licensing of compounds, products and enabling technologies; physician practice contracts; international and telehealth agreements; acquisition of innovative healthcare technologies; and strategic alliances. Mark also drafts and negotiates a wide range of complex commercial agreements relating to developing, licensing, and distributing information services and other technologies (including SaaS and AI); creating client websites; marketing and advertising services; and professional and consulting service arrangements, and advises on privacy, healthcare laws, and other compliance matters.

Prior to joining Outside GC, Mark was Associate General Counsel at the University of Pennsylvania, where he supported the University of Pennsylvania Health System (and served as co-chair of the New Technology Review Committee). Before working at Penn, Mark was in-house counsel at two large international research manufacturing pharmaceutical companies: Merck and sanofi-aventis. Earlier in his career, Mark was an attorney at the Department of Labor in Washington, D.C., Deputy Attorney General in the New Jersey Office of the Attorney General, and worked in private practice in northeastern New Jersey, where he focused on bankruptcy matters and commercial litigation.
